Evening World. BASEBALL PARK, CINCINNATI, Bept. 24.—The day's rest (Ned Hanlon's Brooklyn ball players and Joe Kelley's red-legged coterie enjoyed yesterday fitted them well for to-day's game, the opening one of the closing series of 1903. The Dodgers were a bit elated over their ssful stay in Pittsburg and looked clean sweep in this town.

defeat the "Reds" three straight games meant the climbing of the team into fourth place in the league race and the shifting of the local aggregation into the second division. Brooklynite knew that and all were keyed up to a playing pitch which do credit to a team fighting for

All of Hanlon's pitchers are in superi shape, and there is no worry for "Foxy Ned" in that line. He expects his twirlers to outdo the Cincinnatis, and is sure the other boys in the field and at the bat will do their share.

Who to pitch to-day was the problem Hanion had not solved until game time. man wanted the chance, Garvin, Thatcher and Jones warmed up the season was only begin-Schmidt was not in the line, behe worked only a couple of days

Kelley had Ewing, Hahn and Bill Phillips and a couple of his new twir: ers working, and his selection depended Hanlon's choice.

Hanlon gave out to-day the list of barnstorming games the Trolley-Dodgers play next week on their way home to Brooklyn. They open up Monday at Catlettsburg, Ky., go to Charleston, W. Va., Tuesday; Wilmington, Del., Wednesday and Thursday; Harrisburg Friday and Jersey City Saturday and perior hitting powers and develues of m blocking.

Cole took a lot of punishment, as he could not avoid Sullivan's terrific left swings to the body and the constant battering on the head. Cole had a good left, which he used occasionally, but Sullivan's perfect guard foiled many of Cole's swings.

Sullivan's left swings to the head began to show effect in the third round, when he opened Cole's lip, and he kept the blood coming in the remainder of the bout.

the blood coming in the remainder of the bout.

Sullivan was after his man in every round with his left swing on the ribs, alternating it to the head. Both worked hard in clinches to catch each other on the break and some sharp short-arm jolts were delivered.

Soveral times Cole ran into straight lefts that sent his head back with a snap, and his right guard could not fathom Sullivan's left whips.
